Dr Tom Giesen

Specialist lawyer for employment law

Tom advises public and private principals and contractors on medium-sized and large construction and plant engineering projects. He also advises principals and contractors on issues relating to the establishment and structuring of employment relationships, their handling and termination; his main focus here is on advising companies on restructuring measures. In the field of compliance he advises on the implementation of guidelines, their design, in cooperation with employee organisations, and the prosecution of employment law infringements for companies. He also advises and trains employers in the areas of temporary labour supply and the secondment of employees.
